Diploma of Project Management (BSB51407)

This Diploma of Project Management course is for managers or leaders of projects who want to develop their skills and knowledge in excellent project management and gain a nationally recognised qualification.

The course is facilitated by Mike Nolan, one of the most highly regarded project managers and trainers in Australia and is particularly relevant for people currently engaged in a project and others who have previous experience in or leading a project.

Mike Nolan Management Services and the Centre for People are the leading providers of Project Management qualifications in South Australia.

It brings together people from a range of agencies to share their project experience, challenges and successes. Mike brings his own successes, learning and insights from a myriad of projects from policy to construction and IT. The combination makes for a dynamic, practical and relevant course for all participants.

Starting in June 2012, the course is a combination six (6) one (1) day workshops and course work undertaken by participants, usually as part of their own workplace projects. Also included is a comprehensive set of manuals including a valuable range of tools, templates and instruments which, in soft copy, are ready for use in participants' workplaces.

Final submission of work for assessment is usually 8 weeks after completion of the workshops – this means participants can finalise their qualification by the end of the year.

This Diploma of Project Management course is presented by Mike Nolan Management Services, on behalf of the Centre for People Development, a Nationally Registered Training Organisation.
